MEDICINAL.

Take Simmons' Liver Regulator

For all diseases of the Liver. Stemach and Spleen

WILL CURE DYSPEPSIA.

I MUST OWN that your Simmons' Liver Regulator fully deserves the popularity it has attained. As a fam-ily medicine it has no equal. It cured my wife of a malady I had counted incurable -that wolfsbane of our Am-orican people, Dyspepsia. A. E. P. ALBERT, Professor in Nicholas Public School, Parish of Terrebonne, La.

MALARIOUS FEVERS

You are at liberty to use my name in praise of your Regulator as prepared by you, and recommend it to every one as the best preventive for Fever and Ague in the world. I plant in southwestern Georgia, near Albany, Georgia, and must say that it has done more good on my plantation among my negroes than any medicine I ever used. It supersedes quinine if taken in time. Yours, &c., Hon, B. H. HILL, Ga.

CHILDREN!-Your Regulator is superior to any other remedy for Malarial Diseases among children, and it has a large sale in this sec-tion of Georgia.—[W. M. Russell, Albany, Ga. CONSTIPATION.

TESTIMONY OF THE CHIEF JUSTICE OF GEORGIA.—I have used Simmons' Liver Regulator for constipation of my bowels, caused by a temporary derangement of the liver, for the last three or four years, and always, when used according to the directions, with decided benefit. I think it is a good medicine for the derangement of the liver—at least such has been my personal experience in the use of it. HIRAM WARNER, Chief Justice of Georgia. SICK HEADACHE.

EDITORIAL-We have tested its virtues, personally, and know that for Dyspepsia, Biliousness and Throbbing Headache, it is the best medicine the world ever saw. We have tried forty other remedies before Simmons' Liver Regulator, but none of them gave us more than temporary relief; but the Regulator not only relieved but cured us .- [Editor Telegraph and Mossonger, Macon, Ga.

COLIC AND GRUBBS IN BORSES. Having had during the last twenty years of my life to attend to Racing Stock, and having had so much trouble with them with Colic, Grubbs, &c., gave me a great deal of trouble. Having heard of your Regulator as a cure for the above diseases, I concluded to try it. After trying one PACKAGE IN MASH I found it to cure in every instance. It is only to be tried to prove what I have said in its praise. I can send you certificates from Augusta, Clinton and Macon as to the cure of horse.

Fred Douglass' Lecture.

Frederick Douglass, United States marshal for the District of Columbia, delivered a lecture to a large audience of colored persons last night at the Douglass Institute, for the benefit of St. Paul's lyceum. His subject was "Washington City." He said that the love of country is to the patriot what love of family is to the man. The grand Centennial Exposition was an outgrowth of this patriotism, and was a monument of the republic made consistent with itself. Washington city was regarded by the patriot, whether she is arrayed in glory or in shame, as the national heritage. Whether amidst the splendors of Europe or the wilds of America, 2 citizen of the United States felt bound to this common centre. He had heard Daniel Webster say at Bunker Hill to a large concourse of citizens, "Wherever else you may be strangers, you are all here at home." The same may be said of Washington. Elsewhere you may belong to one of the States: there, to the United States. Elsewhere carpet-baggers: there, at home. Under the shadow of its lofty dome all men are free and equal-even the United States marshal for the District of Columbia included. [Laughter.] Every man at least once in his life should visit Washington-not as the Mohammedan visits Mecca, the Catholic Rome, the Hebrew Jerusalem, or the Chinese the Flowery Kingdom, but with an honest spirit of patriotism, and a sense of nationality inspired by its surroundings. Regard it as you regard the flag-the symbol of religious, political and

Certain persons objected to Washington as centralizing, but he preferred centralization to sectionalism. The city had increased more in eight years of freedom than in sixty years of slavery. Gen. Grant, who could hereafter be spoken of with more favor than now, had done more for the city than any of his predecessors. [Applause. | The board of public works had been charged with being a ring of thieves, engaged in plunder, yet a democratic committee could find nothing against them. They had lifted the city out of the mud and mire of seventy years, and clothed it with an appearacce worthy of the seat of government of this great people. There was an atmosphere different in Washington than elsewhere. Baltimore had its atmosphere, and he always felt it when he came here. It was here their religious meetings were broken up; it was here that men received nine-and-thirty lashes for teaching colored men to read, and it was here that the flag had not been highly honored. Washington was not a good city. It had a good many churches, but it was some distance from the spot to which their spires pointed. It had a bad beginning, and had never produced any great statesman or philanthropist. The descendants of its old families had made no mark. It sided with treason against loyalty, and its selection was a great mistake, being sandwiched between two slave States and the headquarters of the slave trade, where boys were sold as swine. It was cruel without reason and indecent without shame. Freedom of speech and of the press was unknown, and its idol was slavery. John Quincy Adams was threatened with death for advocating the right of petition. Drinking and gamb ling were prevalent under the dome of the capitol, the duelist was in repute, and the place filled with poisonous weeds and serpents. Moral life was a sham; all was fair without but foul within. Its boasted chivalry was to challenge a northern man to fight and to whip a negro with his hands tied. The people ap-

more welcome than Lincolo, Lee than Grant and the stars and bars more than the Star Spangled Banner. [Applause. | Parson Brownlow made an apt remark on his way to Washington. He said that he felt be must be getting near the city as he began to feel as if he wanted to steal something. [Laughter.] Washington society fanned into a fury the passions of men and much of the old spirit was left. The portraits of Giddings, Gerritt Smith and such men had no place on the walls of the Corcoran art gallery but the Calbouns and McDuffies were numerous. They knew how to make northern men with southern principles, and that class were reappearing now. It was again getting dark for the colored race, but the shadow would ultimately pass away. [Applause.] The old Maryland and Virginia families had the best pickings, and held the offices and slaves. But Virginia's glory had departed. Instead of the Mother of States she is the grandmother, and occasionally one of her sons appears chewing James river tobacco, their dignity gone, masters wihout slaves and lords without lands. The Washingtonian is indolent in all his movements. Step into a store and you will wait five minutes before you are noticed. Everyone of them has been or expects to be a great man. Laughter. | They walk slowly but not measured, their arms hanging listlessly by their sides. He excels all other Americans in sitting, and can remain in an easy chair longer without fatigue than any other man. [Laughter.] He is fully equal in this respect to the Turk. He carries a cane. He walks with it, sits with it, and talks with it. Like the swords of the knights of old, they are more for ornament than support. They wear their hats pulled down over their eyes like thieves and robbers. They think it gives them a Congressional look. There is a class called poor white trash, who never held office. These were the slave overseers, catchers, whippers and watch-dogs. They make some sort of living by hunting and fishing, and yet they are not happy. [Laughter.] They talk of the Lost Cause as if they had had mil lions in it. The city is filled with schemers of all kinds and of both sexes, who strive to get something for nothing. To be honest is to be a fool. The place is filled with duplicity and servility. The change in the condition of the colored people was remarkable. Their schools were among the best, and when he visited there and found bright and intelligent children doing the most difficult mathematical problems, he felt there was a future for their race. | Applause. | The lecture occupied over two hours in its delivery .- Baltimore Gazette.
